

Video 1: How can I access ACS data using American FactFinder?

This video demonstrates how to access ACS data.

1. To access ACS data from the Census Bureau homepage, click American FactFinder. The American FactFinder displays.
2. In the Getting Detailed Data section under American Community Survey, click get data. The ACS Data Sets page displays with the most recently released data set selected by default. The ACS Data Sets page will update as new ACS data are released each year. You can use the radio buttons on the left to select a different data set.

This ACS Data Sets page shows the full list of ACS data products. Use the links provided to browse the products including various profiles, tables, and maps. These ACS data products contain the most frequently requested demographic, social, economic, and housing data. This concludes this video demonstration. Additional videos in the ACS video series demonstrate ACS data products in more detail. For more information, visit www.census.gov/acs.
